

Mechatronic engineer

Hi everyone, my name is Samuel caleb martinez Hernandez and I'm a student of the career of engineering in mechatronics of the UPZMG and today I'm going to talk about the theories about this singer and his music videos.

I will start with what I consider to be the chronological order of the trilogy that started the rumors about his satanism or occultism.

We will start with the song called: "can't feel my face" whose official video shows the pact he makes with the devil disguised as a person. The weeknd went from being a boring and uninteresting guy to being the life of the party, this in just a second, thanks to the help of the devil, everything happened when he set him on fire in the middle of a presentation, giving him the fame that the weeknd apparently wanted.

The next song is called "Tell your friend" the video shows the weeknd burying himself, which makes apparent reference to his old him, before he made the pact, then the devil shows up to see what's going on, suddenly the weeknd kills him with two shots, then he leaves the place driving a black car.

The last music video is called: "The hills" where he is seen getting out of a car that crashed and overturned, I assume it's the same car of the last video, anyway, two girls that also were in the car, were really mad at him, but he don't seemed to care to much about that.

Finally he arrives at a house where he meets the devil again, making it clear that he will not get rid of him, never.

The trilogy ends here with this video.

Now it's time to give my opinion of this.

As you know, there are people who are not very attached to religious belief and many of them work in Hollywood, so I can say that this is all about the typical Hollywood drama.

If there is something that I agree on, it is the fact that it is fun to play with the minds of others and making videos where they mess with someone's religious position, just falls back on something, publicity, and yes! It's true, the bad publicity is good publicity.
